Introduction

Our school's sex education policy is based on the Sex Education Guidelines (L.E.A; The National Healthy School Standard; and The DfE guidance on Sex and Relationship Education Guidance (ref DfEE 0116/2000). In this document, sex education is defined as 'learning about physical, moral and emotional development. It is about understanding the importance of family life, stable and loving relationships, respect, love and care. It is also about the teaching of sex, sexuality, and sexual health'. Sex education is part of the personal, social and health education curriculum in our school. While we use sex education to inform children about sexual issues, we do this with regard to matters of morality and individual responsibility, and in a way that allows children to ask and explore moral questions. We do not use sex education as a means of promoting any form of sexual orientation.

1. Aims and Objectives

We teach children about:

- The physical development of their bodies as they grow into adults;
- The way humans reproduce
- Respect for their own bodies and the importance of sexual activity as part of a committed, long term, and loving relationship
- The importance of family life
- Moral questions
- Relationship issues
- Respect for the views of other people

2. Context

While sex education in our school means that we give children information about sexual behaviour, we do this with an awareness of the moral code and values which underpin all our work in school. In particular, we teach sex education in the belief that:

- Sex education should be taught in the context of a loving relationship
- Sex education is part of a wider social, personal, spiritual and moral education process

- Children should be taught to have respect for their own bodies;
- it is important to build positive relationships with others, involving trust and respect in line with the school values ;
- children need to learn the importance of self-control

3. Healthy Lifestyle

At Bartons, we recognise the need to promote a healthy lifestyle in all aspects of the children's lives. As a result, we aim to:

- consult with parents on all matters of health education policy
- look positively at any local initiatives that support us in providing the best sex education teaching programme we can devise.

4. Organisation

We teach sex education mainly through our PSHE programme, although aspects may arise during science or PE when questions can occur concerning changes in a child's body and how it is developing. See appendix 1 for more detail.

In PSHE we encourage children to discuss issues concerning sex education. We teach them about the parts of the body and how these work, and we explain to them what will happen to their bodies during puberty. For example, we tell the boys that their voices will change during puberty and we explain about menstruation. We encourage the children to ask for help when they need it. Most of this teaching happens in Year 6 although aspects of bodily changes and hygiene are discussed in Year 5.

We liaise with the Local Health Authority about suitable teaching materials to use with our children in these lessons. Teachers do their best to answer all questions with sensitivity and care. By the end of Key Stage 2, we ensure that both boys and girls know how babies are born, how their bodies change during puberty, what menstruation is, and how it affects girls and women. We always teach this with due regard for the emotional development of the children.

Parents will be offered support in talking to their children about sex and relationships, and how to link this with what is being taught in school. They will be offered the opportunity of viewing videos which are used as teaching aids.

In science lessons in both Key Stages, teachers inform children about aspects of reproduction appropriate to age. For this aspect of the school's teaching, we follow the guidance in the national scheme of work for science.

5. The Role of Parents/Carers

The school is well aware that the primary role in children's sex education lies with parents and carers. We wish to build a positive and supporting relationship with the parents of children at our school through mutual understanding, trust and co-operation. In promoting this objective we;

- inform parents about the school's sex education policy and practice;
- answer any questions that parents may have about the sex education of their child;
- take seriously any issue that parents raise with teachers or governors about this policy or the arrangements for sex education within the school
- inform parents about the best practice known with regard to sex education, so that the teaching in school supports the key messages that parents and carers give to children at home.

We believe that, through this mutual exchange of knowledge and information, children will benefit from being given consistent messages about their changing body and their increasing responsibilities.

The parents of a pupil may withdraw that child from all or part of the sex education programme, unless it forms part of the National Curriculum. It should be recognized that different strands of teaching do overlap into other areas. It is recommended that parents discuss their concerns with the Headteacher.

6. The role of other members of the community

We encourage other valued members of the community to work with us to provide advice and support to the children with regard to health education. In particular, members of the Local Health authority such as the School Nurse, give us valuable support and advice with our sex education programme.

7. Confidentiality

Teachers conduct sex education lessons in a sensitive manner and in confidence. However, if a child makes a reference to being involved, or likely to be involved in sexual activity, then the teacher will take the matter seriously and deal with it as a matter of child protection. Teachers will respond in a similar way if a child indicates that he/she has been the victim of abuse. In these circumstances the teacher will talk to the child as a matter of urgency. If the teacher has concerns, they will draw their concerns to the attention of the headteacher. The Headteacher will then deal with the matter in consultation with the health care professionals. (See also Child Protection Policy.)

8. The Role of the Headteacher

It is the responsibility of the Headteacher to ensure that both staff and parents are informed about our sex education policy, and that the policy is implemented effectively. It is also the Headteacher's responsibility to ensure that members of staff are given sufficient training, so that they can teach effectively and handle any difficult issues with sensitivity.

The Headteacher liaises with external agencies regarding the school sex education programme, and ensures that all adults who work with children on these issues are aware of the school policy, and that they work within this framework. The Headteacher monitors this policy on a regular basis and reports to governors, when requested, on the effectiveness of the policy.

9. Monitoring and Review

The Curriculum Committee of the governing body monitors our sex education policy at least once every two years or more frequently when there is a specific need. This committee reports its findings and recommendations to the full governing body, as necessary, if the policy needs modification. The Curriculum Committee gives serious consideration to any comments from parents about the sex education programme, and makes a record of all such comments. Governors require the headteacher to keep a written record, giving details of the content and delivery of the sex education programme that we teach in our school.
